CITY NIMRODS ARE JACKED UP

Former Governor Carter Among Them--Rubber Stock Rates High.

WAILUKU, Nov. 23.—A complaint was recently sent to the county board of supervisors, says the Maui News, that persons were hunting on the island of Molokai without a license and when the police approached the offenders they would tell the police that they were the possessors of licenses but had failed to bring the same with them. The deputy sheriff there asked for instructions as to what he should do in such cases. The matter was referred to the county attorney who advised that in all such cases arrests be made and the parties required to prove that they held a license or be fined for violating the law.

On the fifteenth instant Z. Pail, a police officer, rounded up ex-Governor George R. Carter, A. F. Judd, Wm. Kent, S. G. Wilder, R. Ivers, George Chase, George Cushing, C. A. Hartwell and James Munro and requested that they produce their licenses or pay to him the required fee or accompany him.

The gentlemen seemed to know just what was in store for them in case they did not accept his first or second offer and promptly paid five dollars each. They all are now the possessors of licenses and may hunt until next July without being molested.

WIFE BEATER JAILED.

A native named Gilbert pleaded guilty on Monday to assault and battery on his wife. On September 27 he was found guilty of the same offense and sentence suspended. The deputy county attorney said that in the past suspension of sentence had been asked for by the prosecution in many cases where it was felt that it was for the benefit of both the husband and wife and in each case it had proved satisfactory and none of the parties convicted had gone wrong while under suspension of sentence. This case seemed to be an exception, however, the young man seeming to be of the opinion that he could dodge sentence again and the attorney requested the court to deal with the case as severely as he thought it merited. The court sentenced the man to serve a sentence of ten days for the first offense and twenty days for the second offense.

RUBBER STOCK.

Twenty-five paid up shares of the Nahiku Rubber Company were sold this week at par without the assessable shares going with the paid up. This is higher than the stock has sold for in the past but is probably much less than the stock will bring within a short time. It is understood that the assessable stock will be declared paid up long before all of the assessments are called in for which reason the assessable has always been at a large premium.

POLICE CALL BY WIRELESS

A Novel Application to a Good Use of the Wireless System.

A novel and exceedingly practical application of wireless telegraphy has been devised by Charles N. Parmenter, assistant city electrician of Berkeley, according to the Berkeley Reporter which publishes the following regarding him and his invention:

Call up office for instructions at once.

CHIEF.

The above will be the form of salutation policemen and firemen may receive while walking along the street in the near future if Assistant City Electrician Charles N. Parmenter's invention does all that he claims it will do. The message will be sent by wireless and received upon an invisible receiver attached to the top of the officer's helmet. This will conduct the message to an instrument in his pocket, which will record the dots and dashes and can be read at leisure. The warning that a message is in the air will be given by the ringing of a tiny bell in the head gear and whether the message is recorded or not, the warning will have been received and the officer can step to the nearest box and call up the police station.

During the spare moments Mr. Parmenter has had he has worked out his scheme and put it to some practical tests and in every trial the apparatus has worked out as he had planned. His experiments have not been confined, however, to this one line, and by way of diversion he has made Berkeley the first city to receive time taps by wireless telegraphy. Twice each day the residents can set their time pieces by the taps of the wireless system he has inaugurated at the Berkeley fire alarm central station at the corner of Grove and Allston way.

While the spare moments have not been devoted to study and building for the wealth that awaits the successful inventor, the bright young genius has toiled long by the glare of the electric lights, chiefly because he loves the work, and the fruits of his labors promise to bring him a fortune as well as revolutionize the present police and fire communication systems in vogue in this country. It is nothing more nor less than an apparatus weighing only a few ounces, which can be carried conveniently in the pocket of a policeman or fireman by which he can receive orders from his chief or head of department. Under such a scheme as this the sergeant can signal his men wherever they may chance to be, in the street, in their houses, distance and remoteness from town being no limit upon the usefulness of the wireless apparatus. Thus the fire chief can readily be communicated with under this regime, although he is out of earshot of the firebell, and the chief of police can signal his officers in all parts of the city, night or day, with a single message or tap of the instrument. They will find their orders, according to the plans of the instrument designed by Mr. Parmenter, written on a tape in the pocket apparatus.

Each apparatus will be equipped with a small aerial, which will be worn in the hat by which the messages are received. If the orders are not then perfectly understood he may reach the chief by phone, but the special advantage of the system is the ability of the chief to attract the attention of the officers by ringing the bell of the instrument in their pockets.

Mr. Parmenter has received much encouragement from eminent electricians in all parts of the country, who have learned of his efforts in this direction. He is also experimenting with wireless telephony and thinks there is a great future in store for these two methods of communicating intelligence. Like all inventors, the young man was very reticent about his plans and it was only with great difficulty that he could be drawn to talk about the strange instruments that are now towering heavenward near the "Old Bell Tower," beside which stand the offices of the city electrician.
